

Bottomley Ancestry

The following Family Tree traces the ancestors of Harvey Bottomley and Elizabeth Hess back 200 to 300 years, in some cases eight generations in the past. The tree begins with my Father, Burton Bottomley, and it is the same for any of Harvey and Elizabeth's six children. The Bottomley branch first splits into Bottomley and Gallup. The Hess branch splits into Hess and Pearson. And so on and so on. For each generation, the number of direct line ancestors doubles, so that after eight generations, there are 2⁸th ancestors or 256. One more generation means 512 ancestors. Not everyone of these is known, so some branches are shorter than others.

The six Bottomley Siblings each married (at least once) and had one or more children. Each child has all the Bottomley ancestors shown here and again as many ancestors from their other parent's family. Using this chart, each child of the original Bottomley Siblings adds one to the heading at the top. For example, Parents becomes Grandparents, and 7th Great Grandparent becomes 8th Great Grandparent. The 7th Great Grandparent is Generation #9 from the Bottomley Sibling.

I began this tree with help from earlier trees of Bottomleys and Hesses. I was greatly aided by data from ancestry.com, familytreemaker.com, findagrave.com, and of course—Google. One day while searching in Google, I stumbled onto a gold mine of data on the Hess family. Frederic and Catherine Claude Hesse came to America (Ottawa, IL) from Alsace-Lorraine in France. A French author, Monique-Marie FRANÇOIS, compiled three virtual books (online) containing data on the families that immigrated to the United States from that region. A chapter in one of the books is the HESSE FAMILY, and another is the WIEDEMANN FAMILY. A son and two daughters of Frederic married a Wiedemann daughter and two sons after arriving in the US. I was able to go back several generations with the help of this information. The following link, <http://badonpierre.free.fr/princess2/f002.html>, will take you to the table of contents for those families. It is in French, but Google will translate for you.

Much of the data obtained through ancestry.com is shared among many people with common ancestors. This helps find links to your past, but sometimes people assume a link with another tree that isn't correct. To be entirely accurate, each link to a previous generation needs to be checked against actual documents. As you look farther and farther into the past, this proof is harder to find (unless it is a famous or royal family), since documentation gets poor. For those reasons I find that most amateur ancestry research is rather good for about 200 years in the past. After that, it gets sketchy, but still fun to look at as a possibility. This is the case here, however, I would say that the Hess data is stronger thanks to the French document I found.

The following Family Tree was generated with Family Tree Maker software. I hope you have as much fun looking at this tree as I did creating it.

Enjoy!
